

Table of Contents

	page
List of acronyms	xvi
List of tables	xvii
Chapter 1
Introductory orientation, problem statement and methodology	1
1.1 The rationale of this study	2
1.1.1 Education in Swaziland	2
1.1.2 Benefits of parental involvement	3
1.1.3 Parental involvement in Swaziland	4
1.2 The importance of this study	5
1.2.1 Benefits of the parental involvement programme to the learners, parents and teachers	5
1.2.2 Focus of the study	6
1.3 Summary of the rationale and importance of the study	7
1.4 Problem statement	8
1.4.1 Sub-questions	8
1.4.2 Definitions of key terms	9
1.4.2.1 Parents	9
1.4.2.2 Parent participation	9
1.4.2.3 Parental involvement	9
1.4.2.4 Parental involvement programme	10
1.4.2.5 School	10
1.4.2.6 Urban areas	10
1.5 Aim of the research	10
1.6 Research methodology	10
1.6.1 Quantitative methodology	11
1.6.2 Qualitative methodology	11
1.7 Chapter division	12
Chapter 2
Parental involvement in education	14
2.1 Introduction	15
2.2 Definitions of parental involvement and parental participation	16
2.3 Categorisation of types of parental involvement activities	17
2.4 The benefits and practice of Epstein's six types of parental involvement in education . . .	20
2.4.1 Introduction	20
2.4.2 Parenting	22
2.4.3 Communication	25
2.4.4 Parental involvement at the school	26
2.4.5 Parental involvement in learning activities in the home	28
2.4.6 Decision-making	32
2.4.7 Collaboration with the community	35
2.4.8 Summary	36
2.5 How parental involvement works	37

2.5.1 Introduction	37
2.5.2 The learners	37
2.5.3 The parents	39
2.5.4 The teachers	39
2.5.5 Summary	40
2.6 The determinants of parental involvement	40
2.7 Factors influencing the degree and type of parental involvement	41
2.7.1 Introduction	41
2.7.2 The family background	42
2.7.2.1 Socioeconomic status and parental education level	42
2.7.2.2 Race and ethnicity	44
2.7.2.3 Employment status	46
2.7.2.4 Marital status	46
2.7.2.5 Parent gender	47
2.7.2.6 Parents' perceptions of their educational role and that of the school	47
2.7.2.7 Barriers to parental involvement	49
2.7.3 The learners	50
2.7.4 The teachers and school	52
2.7.4.1 Teacher efficacy	52
2.7.4.2 Teacher training in parental involvement	52
2.7.4.3 The nature of the school	55
2.7.4.4 The theoretical stance of the school, teachers, parents, and other educators	56
a) Introduction	56
b) Theories of parental involvement	56
2.7.5 The government	63
2.7.6 Summary	64
2.8 The focus of parental involvement research	66
2.9 Criticisms of parental involvement programmes	67
2.9.1 Doubts as to whether parental involvement benefits children	67
2.9.2 The negative impacts of parental involvement	68
2.9.3 Summary	70
2.10 Criticisms of research on parental involvement	70
2.10.1 A lack of generalisability and stringency	70
2.10.2 Causation vs. correlation	72
2.10.3 Summary	73
2.11 Chapter summary and implications for the design of a parental involvement programme in Swaziland	74

Chapter 3

The education system in Swaziland and parental involvement in Swaziland and South Africa	77
3.1 Introduction	78
3.2 Swaziland and the Swazi education system	79
3.3 The parental involvement policies of Swaziland and South Africa and their implementation	82
3.3.1 Introduction	82
3.3.2 The parental involvement policy of Swaziland and its limitations	82
3.3.2.1 Swazi parental involvement policy	82
3.3.2.2 Limitations of Swazi parental involvement policy	83
3.3.3 The parental involvement policy of South Africa and its limitations	84

3.3.3.1 South African parental involvement policy	84
3.3.3.2 Limitations of South African policy on parental involvement	86
3.3.4 Implementation of Swazi and South African policies on parental involvement	87
3.3.5 Summary	89
3.4 Parental involvement research in Swaziland and South Africa	90
3.4.1 Introduction	90
3.4.2 Benefits of parental involvement in South Africa	91
3.4.3 The current level of parental involvement in South Africa	92
3.4.4 Factors influencing the degree and type of parental involvement in South Africa	94
3.4.4.1 The parents	94
3.4.4.2 The learners	96
3.4.4.3 The teachers and schools	96
3.4.5 Summary	97
3.5 Chapter summary and conclusions	97

Chapter 4

Methods and methodology	100
4.1 Introduction	101
4.1.1 The choice of methodology	101
4.1.1.1 Positivism vs. interpretivism	101
4.1.1.2 The relationship between quantitative and qualitative methodologies	102
4.1.1.3 The use of quantitative methodology in this study	104
4.1.1.4 The use of qualitative interpretive methodology in this study	105
4.1.1.5 The purpose of using a combined approach in this study	106
4.2 The quantitative research	107
4.2.1 Introduction	107
4.2.2 Hypotheses	107
4.2.2.1 Hypothesis 1	108
4.2.2.2 Hypothesis 2	109
4.2.2.3 Hypothesis 3	110
4.2.2.4 Hypothesis 4	110
4.2.2.5 Hypothesis 5	111
4.2.2.6 Hypothesis 6	111
4.2.2.7 Hypothesis 7	112
4.2.2.8 Hypothesis 8	113
4.2.2.9 Hypothesis 9	113
4.2.2.10 Hypothesis 10	114
4.2.3 The pilot study	114
4.2.4 The sample	115
4.2.4.1 The school sample	115
4.2.4.2 The parent sample	116
4.2.5 The procedure	118
4.2.6 The measuring instrument	119
4.2.6.1 Introduction	119
4.2.6.2 Choice of a questionnaire	119
4.2.6.3 The final questionnaire	120
4.2.6.4 Translation of the questionnaire	121
4.2.6.5 Features to ensure maximum response	121

4.2.7 Validity and reliability	122
4.2.7.1 Reliability	122
4.2.7.2 Validity	123
a) Internal validity	123
b) External validity	124
4.2.8 Ethical considerations	125
4.2.9 Processing of the results	126
4.3 The qualitative research	127
4.3.1 Introduction	127
4.3.2 The different phases of the qualitative research and their aims	128
4.3.3 The research instrument	129
4.3.3.1 Differences in ethnicity, language, and gender	129
4.3.3.2 Similarities between the researcher and the interviewees	130
4.3.3.3 Role and relationships	131
4.3.3.4 Values and biases	132
4.3.4 The “problem” of subjectivity	133
4.3.5 Data collection	134
4.3.5.1 Individual teacher interviews	135
a) The informants in the individual teacher interviews	135
b) The procedure used for the individual teacher interviews	137
c) The interview guide used for the individual teacher interviews	138
4.3.5.2 Focus group discussions	139
a) The informants in the focus group discussions	140
b) The procedure used for the focus group discussions	142
c) Discussion guide for the focus group discussions	143
4.3.5.3 Individual parent interviews	143
a) The informants in the parent interviews	144
b) The procedure used for the parent interviews	144
c) Interview guide for the parent interviews	146
4.3.5.4 Observation	146
4.3.6 Recording of data	147
4.3.7 Transcription of data	147
4.3.8 Analysis of data	148
4.3.9 Presentation of data	150
4.3.10 The validity and reliability of the qualitative findings	151
4.3.10.1 Introduction	151
4.3.10.2 Reliability	151
a) Reliability of the design	152
b) Reliability in data collection	153
4.3.10.3 Validity	153
a) Internal validity	153
b) External validity	155
4.3.10.4 Improvements to the study	155
4.3.10.5 Conclusions	156
4.3.11 The validity and reliability of the combined quantitative and qualitative findings	156
4.3.12 Research ethics	157
4.4 Summary	158
Chapter 5
Quantitative findings and discussion	160
5.1 Introduction	161

5.2 Factor analysis	161
5.2.1 Introduction	161
5.2.2 Assignment of suitable names to the three factors	163
5.2.2.1 Assignment of a name to Factor 1	163
5.2.2.2 Assignment of a name to Factor 2	164
5.2.2.3 Assignment of a name to Factor 3	165
5.2.2.4 Items that did not load onto the categories for which they were developed	166
5.2.2.5 Summary	167
5.3 Item analysis	168
5.4 The reliability and validity of the parental questionnaire	172
5.5 Testing of the hypotheses	173
5.5.1 Hypothesis 1	173
5.5.1.1 Comparison between the parents of the three different income groups with regard to school initiated parental involvement	174
5.5.1.2 Comparison between the parents of the three different income groups with regard to parent initiated parental involvement	175
5.5.1.3 Comparison between the parents of the three different income groups with regard to parental attitude to the school	176
5.5.2 Hypothesis 2	177
5.5.3 Hypothesis 3	181
5.5.4 Hypothesis 4	184
5.5.5 Hypothesis 5	186
5.5.6 Hypothesis 6	188
5.5.7 Hypothesis 7	190
5.5.8 Hypothesis 8	191
5.5.8.1 Comparison between the parents whose children attended the four different school groups with regard to school initiated parental involvement.	192
5.5.8.2 Comparison between the parents whose children attended the four different school groups with regard to parent initiated parental involvement	193
5.5.8.3 Comparison between the parents whose children attended the four different school groups with regard to parental attitude to the school	195
5.5.9 Hypothesis 9	196
5.5.9.1 Comparison between the parents of the three different age groups with regard to school initiated parental involvement	196
5.5.9.2 Comparison between the parents of the three different age groups with regard to parent initiated parental involvement	197
5.5.9.3 Comparison between the parents of the three different age groups with regard to parental attitude to the school	198
5.5.10 Hypothesis 10	199
5.6 Parental attitude to the school	201
5.6.1 Most positive parental responses in the factor parental attitude to the school ...	202
5.6.2 Less positive parental responses in the factor parental attitude to the school ...	203
5.6.3 Items 4 and 12 in the factor Parental attitude to the school	205
5.7 Parent initiated parental involvement	206
5.7.1 Parent initiated activities that the majority of parents had done frequently ...	207
5.7.2 Parent initiated activities that the majority of parents had not done frequently	209
5.7.3 Parent initiated activities that a substantial proportion of parents had not done at all	211

5.7.4 Items reassigned to parent initiated parental involvement	213
5.8 School initiated parental involvement	214
5.8.1 Parental involvement activities that the schools made the greatest effort to initiate	214
5.8.2 Parental involvement activities that the schools made little effort to initiate	217
5.8.3 Items reassigned to school initiated parental involvement	221
5.9 Summary of findings and discussion	224
5.10 Conclusions and implications for the development of a parental involvement programme	229

Chapter 6

Qualitative findings and discussion	231
6.1 Introduction	232
6.2 Parental involvement: Opportunities and possibilities	233
6.2.1 Introduction	233
6.2.2 Parenting	233
6.2.2.1 Parents were aware of their basic obligations	233
6.2.2.2 Teachers made no attempt to educate parents	235
6.2.2.3 Discussion	237
6.2.3 Communication	238
6.2.3.1 Teachers and parents recognised the need for communication	238
6.2.3.2 Communication mostly by notices from the school	239
6.2.3.3 Reasons for communicating	241
a) Teachers wished to communicate learners' problems and progress, and parents' duties	241
b) Parents wanted to know about their children's problems and progress	243
6.2.3.4 Discussion	243
6.2.4 Parental involvement at the school	246
6.2.4.1 Parent-teacher meetings, important but infrequent	247
6.2.4.2 Parents were involved in fundraising on the rare occasions they were given the opportunity	250
6.2.4.3 Parents attended the infrequent sports, social and cultural events	253
6.2.4.4 Parents contributed to educational trips if invited to	257
6.2.4.5 Volunteering at the school was unknown	258
6.2.4.6 Summary	261
6.2.5 Learning activities in the home	262
6.2.5.1 Parents conducted home discussions	262
6.2.5.2 Involvement in homework was prioritised	262
6.2.5.3 Very limited home involvement in other ways	267
6.2.5.4 Discussion	268
6.2.6 Parents did not make decisions	273
6.2.6.1 The School Board: Often powerful but usually not representative	273
6.2.6.2 PTA's were fundraising bodies	274
6.2.6.3 Parents were excluded from decisions about school uniform	276
6.2.6.4 Schools should decide about discipline	277
6.2.6.5 Teachers and parents placed confidence in the administration to appoint or dismiss teachers	279
6.2.6.6 The school timetable was the responsibility of the school staff	280
6.2.6.7 Teachers felt parents could contribute to curriculum and teaching methods	280
6.2.6.8 Discussion	282

6.2.7 Schools did not collaborate with their communities	286
6.2.8 Summary: Opportunities and possibilities for parental involvement	288
6.2.8.1 The determinants of parental involvement	288
6.2.8.2 How teachers and parents felt parents should be involved in their children's education	291
6.2.8.3 Conclusions	293
6.3 Explanations for the current picture of parental involvement at these schools	294
6.3.1 Introduction	294
6.3.2 The Ministry of Education restricted parental involvement	294
6.3.3 The teachers' and schools' beliefs, knowledge, understanding and views of parental involvement	295
6.3.3.1 Introduction	295
6.3.3.2 Teachers did not know about parental involvement or its benefits	296
6.3.3.3 Teachers did not view involving parents as part of their role	298
6.3.3.4 Teachers did not recognise their responsibility for parental involvement	299
6.3.3.5 Teachers viewed the parents as problem solvers not partners	300
6.3.3.6 Teachers had little time or energy for parental involvement	302
6.3.3.7 The theoretical stance of the schools	302
6.3.3.8 Conclusions	303
6.3.4 Parents' beliefs, knowledge, understanding and views of parental involvement	304
6.3.4.1 Introduction	304
6.3.4.2 Parents' conception of their role	305
a) Parents delegated responsibility for their children's education to the school	305
b) High school fees absolved parents from responsibility	306
c) The psychological impact of the theoretical stance of the school	307
d) Lack of understanding of parental involvement and its benefits	312
e) Summary	315
6.3.5 Barriers to Involvement	315
6.3.5.1 Introduction	315
6.3.5.2 Less educated parents may be excluded	315
6.3.5.3 Lack of parent confidence	317
6.3.5.4 Learners did not recognise parental authority	319
6.3.5.5 Parental frustration and annoyance	319
6.3.5.6 Inability to speak English	320
6.3.5.7 Work commitments	321
6.3.5.8 Family and community commitments	323
6.3.5.9 Single parents may be excluded	324
6.3.5.10 Children did not always live with their parents	326
6.3.5.11 The perception that the involvement of only one parent per household is necessary	326
6.3.5.12 Older parents and fathers	327
6.3.5.13 Transport	329
6.3.5.14 Poor planning of events	329
6.3.5.15 Teacher-parent relationships	330
6.3.6 Conclusions: Parents beliefs, knowledge, understanding and views of parental involvement and barriers to their involvement	331
6.4 Parental involvement in Swazi urban primary schools: Conclusions	335

Chapter 7

Recommendations for a parental involvement programme for urban primary schools in Swaziland	340
7.1 Introduction	341
7.2 Limitations of this study	343
7.3 A programme for parental involvement in urban senior primary education in Swaziland	344
7.3.1 Introduction	344
7.3.2 Government	345
7.3.3 Teachers	348
7.3.4 Parents	350
7.3.5 Schools	351
7.3.6 Recommendations for each of Epstein's six types of parental involvement	353
7.3.6.1 Parenting	353
7.3.6.2 Communication	355
7.3.6.3 Involvement at the school	357
7.3.6.4 Learning activities in the home	360
7.3.6.5 Decision-making	362
7.3.6.6 Community collaboration	364
7.4 Summary of recommendations for a Swazi urban primary school parental involvement programme	365
7.5 Concluding remarks	368

References	369
-------------------------	------------

Appendices

Appendix I: Introductory letter to the head-teacher	394
Appendix II: Parent cover letter and questionnaire	395
Appendix III: siSwati translation of the parent questionnaire	400
Appendix IV: Interview guide for the individual teacher interviews	404
Appendix V: Materials given to the parents at the workshop	405
Appendix VI: Interview guide for the parent interviews	407

List of acronyms

PI	Parental involvement
SIPI	School initiated parental involvement
PIPI	Parent initiated parental involvement
PAS	Parental attitude to the school
SES	Socioeconomic status
PTA	Parent-teacher association
RSA	Republic of South Africa
USA	United States of America

List of tables

	page
Chapter 4
1. Characteristics of the schools sampled as of January 2003	116
2. Characteristics of the parent sample (n= 218)	117
3. Some characteristics of the teachers interviewed individually	137
4. Some characteristics of teachers participating in the focus group discussion at School C	141
5. Some characteristics of teachers participating in the focus group discussion at School D	142
6. Some characteristics of the parents interviewed	144
Chapter 5
1. Rotated factor pattern and communality estimates	162
2. Items which changed section	166
3. Item analysis of the section, school initiated parental involvement (SIPI)	169
4. Item analysis of the section, parent initiated parental involvement (PIPI)	170
5. Item analysis of the section, parental attitude to the school (PAS)	171
6. Reliability of the parental questionnaire	172
7. Comparison of the SIPI of the different parental income groups	174
8. Comparison of the PIPI of the different parental income groups	175
9. Comparison of the PAS of the different parental income groups	177
10. Difference between the average parental involvement scores of parents with secondary and tertiary levels of education	178
11. Difference between the average parental involvement scores of siSwati- and English-speaking parents	182
12. Difference between the average parental involvement scores of employed and unemployed parents	184
13. Difference between the average parental involvement scores of married and single parents	186
14. Correlation between parental involvement and learners' mathematics achievement	188
15. Correlation between parental involvement and learners' English achievement	190
16. Comparison of the SIPI of the different school groups	192
17. Bonferroni analysis of the level of SIPI for school groups	192
18. Comparison of the PIPI of the different school groups	194
19. Bonferroni analysis of the level of PIPI for school groups	194

20. Comparison of the PAS of the different school groups	195
21. Comparison of the SIPI of the different parental age groups	197
22. Comparison of the PIPI of the different parental age groups	197
23. Bonferroni analysis of the level of PIPI and parental age	198
24. Comparison of the PAS of the different parental age groups	198
25. Difference between the average parental involvement scores of male and female parents	200
26. Most positive parental responses in the factor PAS	202
27. Less positive parental responses in the factor PAS	204
28. Parental responses to Items 4 and 12 in the factor PAS	205
29. Most frequent PIPI activities	207
30. Infrequent PIPI activities	209
31. PIPI activities not done by at least 40% of the parents	212
32. Parental responses to reassigned Items 8 and 9	213
33. Activities that the schools made the greatest effort to initiate	215
34. Activities that the schools made little effort to initiate	217
35. Items reassigned to SIPI	222

Chapter 6

1. Barriers to parental involvement in Swazi primary education	334
--	-----

Chapter 7

1. Recommendations for the major role players in parental involvement	366
2. Recommendations for each of Epstein's six types of parental involvement	367