

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I wish to express my gratitude and thanks to:

Dr Val Rapmund, my supervisor. Thank you for the understanding you showed me throughout the challenges I faced at the onset of this journey. You have been my light in the darkness and without your guidance and constant encouragement I would not have found my way. Your patience has been an example for me to aspire to and I appreciate your persistence in ensuring I give my best so that this work is a true reflection of myself.

To my co-researchers, the participants who co-operated in this research study. Thank you for having the courage to explore your past and share your stories with integrity. Without you, I would not have been able to achieve my goal. Your strength is a lasting example and your voices clear and timeless.

To my parents. Thank you for the patience you have shown me on this long road. You instilled in me the desire to question as well as to remain curious to understand on a deeper level, both of which have been invaluable tools on my journey. You have always been my soft place to fall and your unconditional love and support have been invaluable to me. Most importantly though, thank you for believing in me.

To Luke, thank you for keeping me grounded. Your faith in me has kept me moving forward. I can never repay the sacrifices you have made so that I could achieve my goal. Thank you for loving me unconditionally and with such understanding.

To my siblings, Justin, Jarred, Cole, and Ashton. Thank you for the sacrifices and adjustments that you have made so that I could complete this work in the familiarity and security of home.

Finally, to my Aunt Mickey. While I was on my journey, you were taking the final steps in yours. Throughout your struggle, you showed me what true courage was in the face of adversity. Each day you unearthed a reason to smile and I pray that I can drink in life the way you did. Keep smiling in the peace that you have found. This study of courage and resilience is dedicated to you.
