

LIST OF TABLES

		Pages
Table 2.1	Conceptual elements of the educational process	56
Table 3.1	The theoretical framework of Donabedian	71
Table 3.2	ANA's amended criteria used in the compilation of standards for the personnel development programme	89
Table 3.3	Standards for the personnel development programme of a nursing college	90
Table 4.1	Nursing colleges and academic hospitals included in this research	105
Table 5.1	Donabedian's theoretical framework on structural, process and outcomes standards as applied to the data analysis regarding personnel development	111
Table 5.2	Indication of positions held by nursing college principals (n=8)	116
Table 5.3	Highest academic qualification and basic professional registration of principals (n=8)	118
Table 5.4	The influence of the Skills Development Act (Act no. 97 of 1998) on the personnel development programme, according to nursing college principals (n=8)	120
Table 5.5	Factors that inhibit the effective execution of personnel Development (n=8)	125
Table 5.6	Content of the orientation programmes for newly appointed nurse educators (n=8)	127
Table 5.7	Content of a personnel development programme of nursing colleges for clinical preceptors (n=8)	133
Table 5.8	Development of personnel regarding organisational management skills at nursing colleges (n=8)	140

	Page
Table 5.9	Options for the clinical development of the nurse educator (n=11) 163
Table 5.10	Suggested ISE for clinical preceptors/registered nurses in the clinical training of student nurses 164
Table 5.11	Official title of nurse educators (n=130) 166
Table 5.12	The post-basic qualifications of nurse educators (n=130) 168
Table 5.13	Aspects of personal development of nurse educators included in the personnel development programme (n=130) 171
Table 5.14	Content of the personnel development programme regarding the professional development of nurse educators, according to the views of nurse educators (n=130) 173
Table 5.15	Suggested selection criteria for registered nurses to act as clinical preceptor (n=84) 179
Table 5.16	Official title and highest academic qualification of clinical preceptors (n=90) 186
Table 5.17	Post-basic qualifications of clinical preceptors (n=58) 188
Table 5.18	The availability of a personnel development program 207
Table 5.19	The effect of the Skills Development Act (Act no 97 of 1998) on the personnel development program 208
Table 5.20	Responsibility for the educational needs of clinical preceptors according to the opinion of nursing college principals (n=8), directors/deputy director of nursing (n=11) and clinical preceptors (n=90) 210
Table 5.21	Liaison of nurse educators with the clinical setting according to the opinion of nursing college principals (n=8) and directors/deputy directors of nursing (n=11) 211
Table 5.22	The suggested criteria to select clinical preceptors according to the views of nursing college principals (n=8), and nurse educators (n=84) 212
Table 5.23	Comparison between respondents' suggestions regarding the form of remuneration for clinical preceptors 214

Table 6.1	Proposed format of a record regarding the accompaniment of student nurses	244
-----------	---	-----

List of Figures

		Page
Figure 3.1	The proposed organisational structure of the personnel development department	76
Figure 3.2	Theoretical framework for personnel development in nursing education	82
Figure 5.1	Nursing college principals: Duration in current positions (n=8)	118
Figure 5.2	The availability of personnel development programmes in nursing colleges (n=8)	119
Figure 5.3	Provision for personal development of nurse educators in personnel development programmes of nursing colleges (n=8)	121
Figure 5.4	Professional development of nurse educators (n=8)	122
Figure 5.5	Guidelines used for personnel development at nursing colleges (n=8)	124
Figure 5.6	Strategies for assessment of educational needs of nurse educators at nursing colleges (n=8)	126
Figure 5.7	The use of organisational management strategies to enhance personnel development at nursing colleges (n=8)	128
Figure 5.8	The inclusion of educational needs of clinical preceptors in personnel development programmes of nursing colleges (n=8)	130
Figure 5.9	Strategies used in personnel development programmes of nursing colleges to provide for the educational needs of registered nurses/clinical preceptors (n=8)	131
Figure 5.10	The principals' view on who should take responsibility for the educational development of clinical preceptors (n=8)	132
Figure 5.11	The use of the university's library facilities by nursing college educators (n=8)	135
Figure 5.12	Facilities available for personnel development (n=8)	137

		Page
Figure 5.13	Financial provision for personnel development according to the views of nursing college principals (n=8)	138
Figure 5.14	Liaison with the health services regarding clinical educational needs of nurse educators (n=8)	141
Figure 5.15	The selection of clinical preceptors by nursing colleges (n=8)	142
Figure 5.16	Criteria used by nursing colleges for selection of registered nurses as clinical preceptors (n=8)	144
Figure 5.17	Remuneration of clinical preceptors, according to nursing college principals (n=8)	145
Figure 5.18	Facilitation of change towards the outcomes-based approach in the clinical education and training of students by nursing colleges (n=8)	146
Figure 5.19	Official title of director/deputy director of nursing (n=11)	147
Figure 5.20	The highest academic qualification of directors/ deputy directors of nursing (n=11)	148
Figure 5.21	Additional post-basic qualifications of directors/ deputy directors of nursing (n=11)	149
Figure 5.22	Availability of a personnel development programme in selected hospitals (n=11)	150
Figure 5.23	Effect of the Skills Development Act (Act no. 97 of 1998) on the personnel development programme at selected hospitals (n=11)	152
Figure 5.24	Facilitation of the development of educational skills of the registered nurse in the personnel development programme of selected hospitals(n=11)	153
Figure 5.25	The clinical expertise of registered nurses, according to directors/deputy directors of nursing (n=11)	154
Figure 5.26	Directors/deputy directors of nursing's views on the adequacy of registered nurses' educational and assessment skills (n=11)	156

	Page
Figure 5.27	The view of the directors/deputy directors of nursing on the clinical expertise of nurse educators (n=11)	157
Figure 5.28	Formal agreement with associated nursing college regarding the education and training of student nurses (n=11)	158
Figure 5.29	Accompaniment of student nurses in the clinical setting, according to directors/deputy directors of nursing (n=11)	159
Figure 5.30	Options for the remuneration of clinical preceptors as indicated by directors/deputy directors of nursing (n=11)	161
Figure 5.31	The highest academic qualification of nurse educators (n=130)	167
Figure 5.32	The importance of a personnel development programme for nurse educators (n=130)	169
Figure 5.33	The availability of a personnel development programme in the nursing college (n=130)	169
Figure 5.34	Provision made in personnel development programme for the professional development of nurse educators (n=130)	172
Figure 5.35	Support for nurse educators to attend congresses (n=130)	174
Figure 5.36	The clinical competence of nurse educators as assessed by respondents (n=130)	175
Figure 5.37	Educational skills of nurse educators according to their own views, based on Benner's continuum from novice to expert level	176
Figure 5.38	Presence of clinical preceptors on the nursing college staff establishment, according to nurse educators (n=130)	177
Figure 5.39	Accompaniment of student nurses in the clinical setting by registered nurses (n=73)	178
Figure 5.40	A personnel development program for clinical preceptors by the nursing college, according to the views of nurse educators (n=130)	180
Figure 5.41	The possible content of a personnel development programme for clinical preceptors, according to nurse educators (n=130)	182

	Page
Figure 5.42	Nurse educators' viewpoints regarding the remuneration of registered nurses involved in the education of student nurses (n=130)	183
Figure 5.43	Suggestions regarding the remuneration of registered nurses/clinical preceptors involved in the education and training of student nurses according to nurse educators (n=130)	184
Figure 5.44	Basic professional registration of clinical preceptors (n=90)	187
	Page
Figure 5.45	Areas of clinical expertise of clinical preceptors (n=90)	187
Figure 5.46	The content of the personnel development programme relating to the personal development of clinical preceptors (n=90)	190
Figure 5.47	Aspects of the professional development of clinical preceptors included in the personnel development programme (n=90)	191
Figure 5.48	Aspects of nursing education to be included in the personnel development programme of clinical preceptors (n=90)	192
Figure 5.49	The need for the development of the higher cognitive skills of clinical preceptors (n=51)	193
Figure 5.50	The availability of learning outcomes for student nurses in the nursing unit, according to clinical preceptors (n=90)	194
Figure 5.51	Confidence of clinical preceptors regarding the formulation of learning outcomes for student nurses (n=88)	195
Figure 5.52	Clinical preceptors' confidence about the facilitation of student learning in the clinical setting (n=90)	196
Figure 5.53	Clinical preceptors' developmental needs regarding the education and training of student nurses (n=90)	198

		Page
Figure 5.54	Clinical competence of clinical preceptors according to their own assessment (n=90)	199
Figure 5.55	Clinical preceptors' view on the initiation of a personnel development programme for them by nursing colleges (n=90)	200
Figure 5.56	Suggestions for a personnel development programme for clinical preceptors initiated by the nursing college (n=90)	201
Figure 5.57	The financing of a personnel development programme for clinical preceptors according to the views of clinical preceptors (n=90)	202
Figure 5.58	Clinical preceptors' viewpoints on remuneration for their participation in the education and training of student nurses (n=90)	204
Figure 5.59	The form of remuneration of clinical preceptors for participating in the education and training of student nurses according to the views of clinical preceptors (n=90)	205
Figure 5.60	The educational competence of clinical preceptors, according to the views of clinical preceptors (n=90)	206
Figure 5.61	The response of principles of nursing colleges (n=8), director/deputy directors of nursing (n=11), nurse educators (n=130) and clinical preceptors (n=90) as to whether clinical preceptors should receive additional remuneration for their input in the clinical training of student nurses	213
Figure 6.1	Suggestions for a developmental approach towards the development of clinical preceptors/registered nurses involved in the education and training of student nurses	251

LIST OF ABBREVIATIONS

AACN	American Assosiation of Colleges of Nursing
ANA	American Nurses Association
APL	Assessment of prior learning
CPD	Continuous Professional Development
ISE	In-service education
NQF	National Qualifications Framework
OBE	Outcomes-based Education
PC	Personal computer
RPL	Recognition of Prior Learning
SANA	South African Nursing Association
SADF	South African Defence Force
SANC	South African Nursing Council
SAQA	South African Qualifications Authority
SETA	Sector Education and Training Authority