opinion the book itself is well got up. When the publication was decided upon, we thought that it would help forward the struggle. As it has not been taken up by a good firm of publishers, it would go no further than advertising me a little. For the sake of the struggle, it appears to me that the advertising of me should be avoided. Otherwise it is there I have to abide by the result. I hope that you will dismiss the whole subject from your mind.

Yet, I know full well what a tremendous strain the struggle must put upon you. Every week I read 1:6 shows me more and more what amount of work you are putting in. And this perhaps is the last
