Sir,

I acknowledge receipt of your letter which was informing me about the laboratory work in Johannesburg. I also express my sincere thanks for your having remembered me among those whom you informed. Taking up such a job would be of real help to me.

However, I have already decided to return to Fort Hare for the completion of my course. The only thing which worries me is that I am not yet accepted. Yesterday, I received a letter from the Registrar who told me that my name was still on the waiting list.

This situation, Sir, is really upsetting me as it would mean altering all my schemes. Moreover, I am just bent on going to school and have no alternative. I, therefore, request you, Sir, to talk to the Registrar on my behalf.

What worries me most is the fact that I have already booked on the boat that is due to leave Durban on the 1st of March. Moreover, it is my wish to arrive on the opening day so that I may not lose much in the classes.

Thanking you in anticipation,
I remain.

Yours respectfully,
Mervin Wilmot Ngwane.
