PROFILE

Professor Sabelo J. Ndlovu-Gatsheni is currently the Head of Archie Mafeje Research Institute (AMRI) based at the University of South Africa (UNISA), an institute that promotes research into social policy, African thought, decoloniality, decolonizing knowledge systems, and articulating Africa-centred epistemologies. He is also a Professor in the Department of Development Studies at the University of South Africa; a Fellow of the African Studies Centre (ASC) in Leiden in The Netherlands; a Senior Research Associate at the South African Institute of International Affairs (SAIIA) in Johannesburg in South Africa; and a Research Associate at The Ferguson Centre for African and Asian Studies at The Open University in United Kingdom. In November 2012 he was an invited International Visiting Scholar at the Institute of Developing Economies (IDE) in Japan. Professor Ndlovu-Gatsheni's current research is informed by decolonial theory and is focused on understanding African social formations from inside, analysis of genealogies, trajectories and horizons of African thought and intellectual movements within the broader discursive context of modernity and global imperial designs in place since the colonial encounters. He has published over 40 peer-reviewed articles, over 25 book chapters, more than 5 books, and presented over 40 academic papers in conferences and seminars. He is a specialist in African History, African Development, African Studies, and African Politics.
