Description

The Library subscribes to 300 main titles of electronic databases and the number is growing. Each of these titles has a unique URL and contains many more individual titles. The Digital Commercial Collection Developer is responsible for the administrative duties related to these databases and the Millennium (OASIS) Electronic Resource Management module is used for this purpose. The Library subscribes not only to new titles but information related to the existing electronic databases changes and needs to be updated at an ongoing basis.

The Library would like to have the ability to:

- Communicate information related to the library e-resources on the library web pages to the clients
- Update the information as a result of changes and new information made available by the database vendors
- Provide easy access to the variety of e-resources and subject databases
- Support additional services related to the e-resources and subject databases e.g. training, rss feeds, alerts

Reference management

Welcome to RefWorks@Unisa

RefWorks is a personal information and research manager that allows you to create, organize and manage information. This can be used to insert temporary citation placeholders into your document at the exact spot footnotes should appear when writing a paper or article.

Once the draft version of the paper or article is completed, RefWorks "reads" the temporary citation placeho bibliography in your chosen output style.

Off-campus access to the RefWorks log-in screen will require the group code RWUSF.

The following RefWorks tutorials are available

- Basic tutorial
- Advanced tutorial
- RefShare tutorial

Taylor&Francis Online Journals new interface now live

Posted on June 27, 2011 by Dorette Snyman

The new interface for Taylor & Francis Online Journals was successfully launched on Monday 27 June. This new interface replaces the old Informaworld interface. Links on the Unisa Library E-resources web pages were updated with the new URL's today.

Taylor & Francis Online provides access to over 1,600 scholarly refereed online journals in all major subject areas including most of the journals published by Unisa Press. There is a host of online tutorials available to help you search on the new interface. Send any problems with the new interface directly to the Unisa Library Database Helpdesk (bib-dbase@unisa.ac.za) for attention.

Current & future

- The workgroup is now at:
  - Testing the display and style sheets – feedback & changes
  - More rigorous testing of creating the database
  - Creating of On- and off-campus screens
  - Finalization of "Trial resources" screens
- In Phase 2 (2012), attention to:
  - Adding URL's to mobile access
  - Passworded resources
  - Ranking of e-resources within subject lists
  - Wish list:
    - adding PL name & contact detail to Subject page
    - Information on accessibility complaincy
